

VETTEL NAMED 2011 F1 WORLD CHAMPION AFTER HISTORY MAKING JAPAN

Infiniti is proud to sponsor the youngest ever Formula 1 Racing Champion, Sebastian Vettel

Sebastian Vettel underlined his reputation as a true master of Inspired Performance, by winning the 2011 Formula One World Championship at the Japanese Grand Prix on October 11, 2011.

Going into the race needing to finish tenth or better to secure the title, the Red Bull Racing driver maintained his composure under huge pressure to finish in third place. This podium finish gave him enough points to seal the championship and at 24, makes him the youngest double World Champion in Formula One history with four races still to go this season.

Commenting on the race, Vettel was characteristically humble stating: "It's phenomenal what's happened - we set ourselves the target to win the Championship this year and so, to win it by Japan with four more races to go, is difficult to put into words - it's as confusing as the first one. I never imagined I would win one Championship and so to win this second one is amazing."

The German star and Infiniti driver has been the class of the 2011 season so far, winning nine races and, along with team mate Mark Webber, ensuring Infiniti and Red Bull Racing have not only wrapped up the Driver's championship but lead the Constructor's World Championship by 130 points.

Christian Horner, Red Bull Racing Team Principal could not be more proud, stating: "He's driven magnificently this year and thoroughly deserves this Championship victory, which he has dominated since the first race in Melbourne. It's the culmination of a lot of hard work and team work and he can be very proud of what he's achieved. This now places him amongst an elite group of drivers who have realized not only a double Championship - but back-to-back World Championships."

Coulter Infiniti congratulates Sebastian Vettel on his inspired World Championship victory and looks forward to following him throughout the racing season.

VETTEL INSPIRED FX50 CONCEPT BOUND FOR PRODUCTION

The Infiniti FX50 Performance Concept inspired by F1 world champ Sebastian Vettel is bound for production, Infiniti announced on October 18th. The concept was introduced last month at the 2011 Frankfurt Auto Show.

Details of the production version, including pricing and launch date, have not been revealed.

"Doing the FX Sebastian Vettel version for Frankfurt was fun, but it's also kind of a pilot," said Andy Palmer, Infiniti executive vice president, in a statement.

"It's about our equivalent of Mercedes-Benz AMG or BMW M Cars. We wanted to test the organization and see if it could cope with this type of special version.

"Sebastian's FX demonstrates we are able to do low-volume specials, and the FX Sebastian Vettel version is one of the first that will go to market."

The concept is equipped with a 414-horsepower 5.0-liter V8 engine and a high-downforce aerodynamics package developed by Infiniti in collaboration with Red Bull Racing. Infiniti is a sponsor of Vettel's Red Bull F1 racecar.

Infiniti said Vettel had a hand in designing the concept following a conversation with Infiniti Chief Creative Officer Shiro Nakamura at the 2011 Geneva Auto Show.

BENEFITS OF NITROGEN TIRES

Maintain your tires with nitrogen and you will see these three primary benefits.

Increased Fuel Efficiency - Correct tire pressure, lessens rolling resistance and maximizes fuel efficiency.

Longer Tire Life - At high temperatures and pressures, oxygen reacts and damages inner tire liners and belt packages; nitrogen does not.

Increased Safety - Under-inflated tires cause 90% of blow-outs. Nitrogen provides more reliable pressure for reduced blowout potential.

TIRE NITROGEN PACKAGE—\$29.95 \(Normally \$39.95\)

Includes Tire Repair and Road Hazard Coverage (up to $150), Towing and Lock out Assistance, Battery Service, Emergency Travel Expense, Free Trip Routing and a Full Discount Travel Agency.
