Instructions

Before You Import Your Car

Step One

Check Transport Canada's List of Vehicles Admissible from the United States to see if your car can be imported and if it must be modified, to meet Canadian requirements. The list of admissible vehicles covers passenger cars, trucks, trailers, motorcycles and snowmobiles that are less than 15 years old, as well as off-road vehicles manufactured after May 1, 1988 and buses manufactured after January 1, 1971.

Step Two

Obtain a recall clearance letter from the authorized dealer or original equipment manufacturer of your car. The recall clearance letter is absolutely necessary to pass the federal inspection. You can call the manufacturer and provide your vehicle identification number to inquire about any pending recalls.

Step Three

Obtain any modification information from the manufacturer or authorized dealer, including costs and parts availability for any required modifications. Any modification costs are up to the car owner.

Step Four

Determine any additional costs, including duty and taxes, by contacting Canada Customs and Revenue Agency. The agency can be reached at (506) 636-5064 from outside Canada and (800) 461-9999 in Canada.

Step Five

Make sure that you have all of the paperwork that you need for your car. You will need title documents, registration papers, sales receipts, a statement of compliance and the recall clearance letter.

Step Six

Find out about safety inspections or emissions test that need to be done. There may also be additional provincial or territorial requirements. You should arrange for insurance for your car before importing it to make the process easier.

Tips & Warnings

To find out the typical modification requirements go to the Registrar of Imported Vehicles website or call (888) 848-8240.

Payment of fees and the receipt of the Vehicle Import Form–Form 1 doesn't guarantee that your car will be approved for importation.

Crossing the Border

Step One

Be ready to show your title documents, registration and sales receipts.

Step Two

Complete the Vehicle Import Form–Form 1, which a Canada customs officer will provide. You must have a Canadian mailing address in order to complete it. Once the form is complete, keep a copy in your car until it is licensed in Canada.

Step Three

Pay the Registrar of Imported Vehicles fee after the customs officer checks your vehicle identification number and manufacturer's statement of compliance label to make sure the numbers match. A nonrefundable fee of $182 is required for all provinces, except Quebec where the fee is $197. In order to pay Canada Customs you will have to use a major credit card. Canada Customs doesn't accept cash or checks. To pay by check or money order, you will need to mail it to the Registrar of Imported Vehicles.

Once the Car is in Canada

Step One

Receive a letter from the Registrar of Imported Vehicles, which should be expected within 10 days. The letter will detail the necessary steps you must take in order to bring your vehicle into compliance.

Step Two

Complete the modifications to your vehicle within 45 days of crossing the border. The Canadian Motor Vehicle Safety Act allows modifications to be performed by the mechanic of your choice. Your particular vehicle manufacturer may require that you use an authorized dealer or agent to perform the modifications.

Step Three

Present the Vehicle Import Form, the inspection form, the recall clearance letter and any receipts for modification work at the time of the federal inspection. A list of federal inspection facilities is provided with the inspection package that is mailed out by the Registrar of Imported Vehicles.

Step Four

Present the Vehicle Import Form—Form 1 to the provincial or territorial licensing authority. Your car may require additional testing to pass provincial or territorial tests.

Tips & Warnings

If your vehicle fails its federal, provincial or territorial inspection, you will have 45 days to have it repair or modify it to pass the inspection.
